OREGON SUMMER RESORTS

THE most delightful seaside resorts on the Pacific coast are within a few miles of Astoria, and thousands of visitors make annual pilgrimages to the watering places to spend the summer months. It has come to be a regular thing for people living in the inland cities and towns to put in a few months each year at the seashore, and from June 1 to September 15 the resorts are thronged with those in search of rest and recreation.

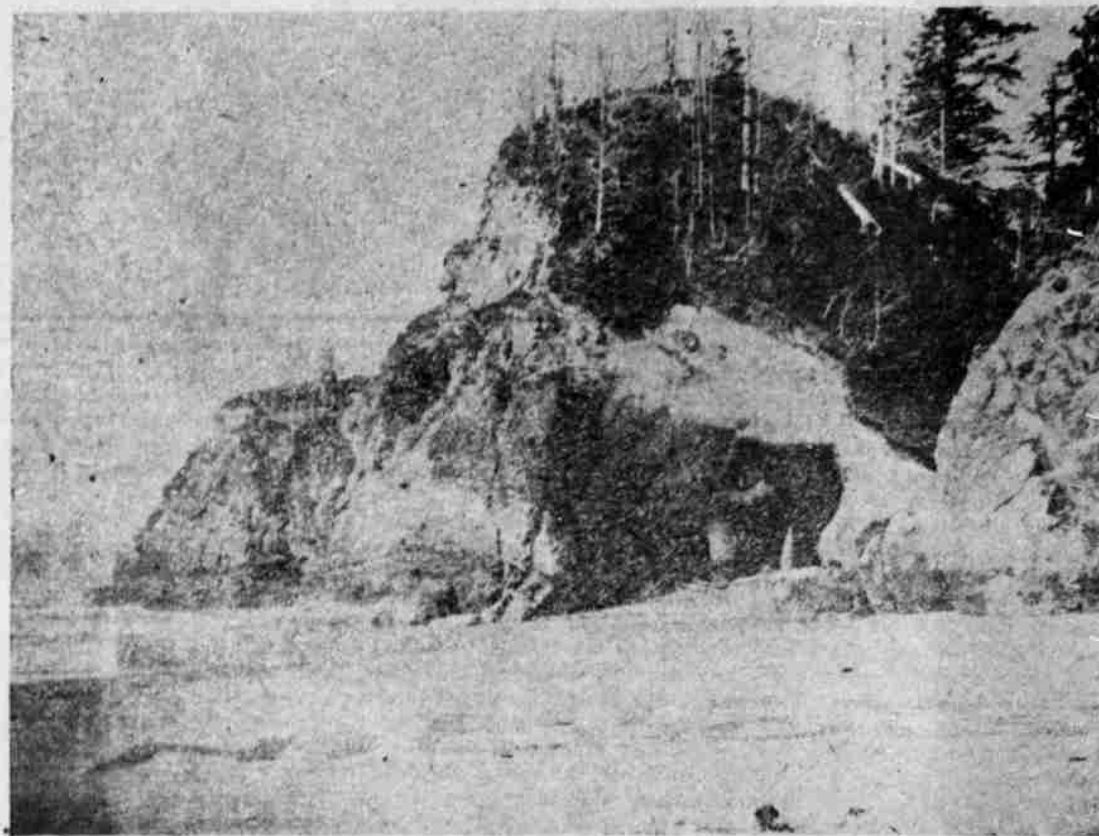

means of almost any person in the state. Convenient schedules are arranged especially for the accommodation of the visitors, and everything possible is done for their comfort and safety.

The Oregon resorts have outstripped those of Washington, and practically all of the traffic comes to the south coast. The Gearhart and Sealde beaches, Cannon beach and Elk creek are growing more in public favor every year, and new hotels are annually being erected to accommodate the season.

The scenery of Clatsop county baffles description. Everywhere the beauties of nature are in evidence, while the streams are filled with trout and the forests abound with game. It is a veritable paradise for the sportsman and a recreation place that is not equalled in the Pacific northwest.

The Astoria railroad company purposes soon to extend its line south to picturesque Elk creek and Cannon beach, which will place those two magnificent resorts within easy reach of

WELL-KNOWN SEASHORE LANDMARK

Hug Point, One of the Attractions at Cannon Beach.

Excellent facilities are now afforded seashore, who are enabled to make the trip to Oregon's famous beaches from Portland in three and a half hours. The Astoria & Columbia Railroad company, through its enterprising general freight and passenger agent, Mr. J. C. Mayo, is rendering unexcelled service, and frequently, during the summer season of 1902, carried more than 5000 visitors to the resorts in a single day. Special rates are made during the season, placing a seaside trip within the

ers. The train takes the resident of Portland from his home to his seaside hotel, without transfers, stops or other annoying delays.

Astoria summers are far-famed, and the seaside visitor during the gay season finds rest and restored health in his sojourn. A morning dip in the surf, a trip along the beach and an afternoon and evening in pleasant company combine to make life well worth living, and are largely responsible for the annual rush that takes place.

seashore. The scenery there is grandly wild, and those two beautiful spots promise to become most popular of the watering places of the coast. Already many summer homes have been built there, where scores of Astorians and Portlanders spend their vacations.

Seaside and Gearhart boast fine hotels, as do Elk creek and Cannon beach. Dancing and bathing pavilions have recently been erected, and the seashore finds ample opportunity to enjoy his summer.

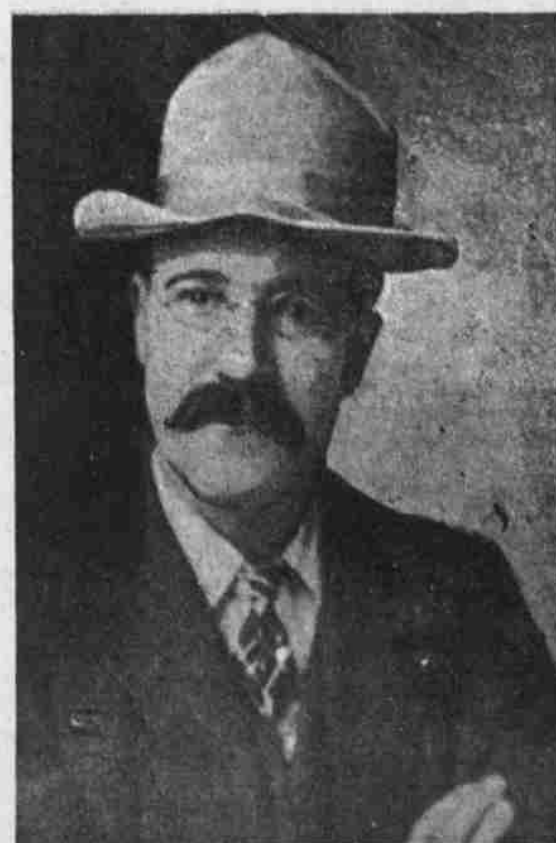

A PROSPERING BUSINESS HOUSE

FOUR years ago two young men, Fred J. Johnson and Alfred R. Johnson, after many years of experience in the grocery business with the Ford & Stokes Co., undertook in an amodest way to run a grocery business for themselves. The location selected was at Nos. 120, 122 and 124 Twelfth street, and at the same place these enterprising brothers are now holding the fort with a large and well appointed establishment, easily classed among the largest firms of the city. It is but natural to seek reasons for such pronounced success, and reasons are readily supplied by their patrons, who agree that fair and courteous treatment, absolutely square dealing, and prompt and judicious business methods are deserving of the triumph which has attended their observance. Many grocery stores have been opened in Astoria, and some have failed, and in this age of keen competition and close bargaining it is pretty safe to conclude that those who succeed are deserving of success. Such is the verdict in favor of Johnson Bros., whose increasing patronage bears evidence of satisfied customers, and whose goods will be found to be right in quality and price. They have placed an order with Andrew Asp, the carriage builder, for the best delivery van that can be manufactured, for use in connection with their trade.

WHAT IS THE USE

TO THE CIGAR AND TO-BACCO DEALERS OF ASTORIA:

What is the use of sending to Portland or San Francisco for goods when you can buy in Astoria the same goods at the same prices? Give it up? Try it.
